

Create your IdHAL

IdHAL = researcher ID in hAL

Advantages :

- Quickly identify your publications in HAL
 - Differentiate yourself from your homonyms
 - Gather all your publications, regardless of the form in which your name has been typed

- Create and customize your HAL CV

- Facilitate the management of your researcher digital ID

Associate your Google Scholar account, ORCID ID, blog URL...

- Export your publications

Enrich a website or your report CRAC, RIBAC...

How to create your IdHAL ?

- Login using your HAL user account
- In the blue banner, click on « My IdHAL »

- Choose your IdHAL

By default, it's in the form of first name-last name, but you can choose something else.

Once you've made your choice, you won't be able to change it.

Configurez votre IdHAL et associez vos identifiants auteurs, cela permet d'identifier vos publications.

 Champs requis
IdHAL * Attention, cet identifiant ne pourra plus être modifié par la suite

Autres identifiants chercheur
 Alignez votre IdHAL avec vos autres identifiants chercheurs
 ex: azeaze_q_2, check : https://arxiv.org/help/author_identifiers + Ajouter

Sites internet et liens sociaux
 Ajoutez vos liens vers les réseaux sociaux
 ex: @johndoe + Ajouter

Enregistrer

- Indicate your other researcher identifiers and links to your pages on social networks
 These elements may appear in your HAL CV.

ORCID

You must first click on the "Save" button to see the connection button.

- Your different author forms (the forms in which your name appears in publications) are automatically retrieved, but you can add or delete them.

The "preferred form" will be the form proposed by default when submitting to HAL.

Preferred form ?

Name Last Name

N. Last Name

- In the next step, click on See publications with your authors forms ?

Associate with your IdHAL those publications of which you are the author (watch out for homonyms!)

If you are missing publications that are nevertheless deposited in HAL, in the list, use the button

After that, publications deposited by your co-authors will be correctly linked to your IdHAL --> Frequently check your IdHAL and reattach your others authors forms and missing publications